Nanjing Normal University, Hangzhou Normal University, Lishui University, and the city of Hangzhou warmly invite herpetological colleagues and students from all over the world to attend the 8th World Congress of Herpetology (WCH8), to be held 15-21 August 2016 in Hangzhou, Zhejiang, China, which is a world-class conference city and offers a wealth of scientific resources, historic figures, cultural heritages and entertainment. The congress will be co-hosted by Chengdu Institute of Biology, Institute of Zoology, and Kunming Institute of Zoology of Chinese Academy of Sciences, and sponsored by China Zoological Society (CZS), Chinese Herpetological Society (CHS), International Society of Zoological Sciences (ISZS), and Society for the Study of Amphibians and Reptiles (SSAR). The hosts, co-hosts, and sponsoring societies will work together in the planning and organizing of the congress. We invite CHS to meet jointly with the WCH8 in Hangzhou.

China has a long history of herpetological research. Studies conducted in China have contributed significantly to our present day understanding of herpetology, global biodiversity and life science. China currently has a spirited and collegial herpetological community that extends from coastal to inland regions, and from the northernmost to southernmost parts of the country. Chinese researchers from across the country have established a significant international presence in diverse areas of herpetology. The WCH8 in Hangzhou will highlight China's southeast coast and the organizing committee naturally will draw largely from the significant herpetological expertise in that region. We will be aided by our herpetological colleagues in other parts of China, giving this congress a truly Chinese flavour. We promise a wonderful social and intellectual experience in one of the world's most beautiful settings.

Detailed information about the 2016 Congress will appear on the WCH8 website (www.wch2016hangzhou.com) and other related sources such as the WCH website (www.worldcongressofherpetology.org), and we encourage you to consult these sources for important dates and details of registration and submission of abstracts, papers (for possible publication in Asian Herpetological Research, Current Zoology, or Integrative Zoology), and oral / poster presentations.

We look forward to seeing you in Hangzhou in August 2016.

Sincerely yours,

Professor Jean-Marc Hero

The World Congress of Herpetology (WCH) was founded on August 2, 1982. Initial funding was contributed by herpetology societies around the world, and was put toward the first WCH meeting in Canterbury, UK, 11-19 September 1989. The objectives of the Congress are to promote international interest, collaboration and co-operation in herpetology. These are to be achieved by holding periodic international congresses of herpetology, by establishing specialist committees, by serving as the Section of Herpetology of the International Union of Biological Sciences and by undertaking or encouraging such other activities as will promote these objectives. The WCH has continued to meet every 3-5 years since 1989, as proposed by the constitution. The WCH2 was held in Adelaide, Australia, 29 December 1993 to 6 January 1994, the WCH3 in Prague, Czech, 2-10 August 1997, the WCH4 in Bentota, Sri Lanka, 3-9 December 2001, the WCH5 in Stellenbosch, South Africa, 19-24 June 2005, the WCH6 in Manaus, Brazil, 17-22 August 2008, and the WCH7 in Vancouver, Canada, 8-14 August 2012. The WCH8 will be held in Hangzhou, China, 15-21 August 2016.

The WCH8 will have 9 plenary lectures, 31 symposia in 9 thematic groups, and contributed paper sessions not covered by any symposium.

Hangzhou (30 °16'N, 120 °12'E), located along southeast coast of China, is the capital of Zhejiang Province and works as the center of politics, economy, science, education and culture of the province. Hangzhou is a key national tourism city, and is renowned as Paradise on the Earth, Cultural State, Home of Silk, Tea Capital, Town of Fish and Rice, Oriental Capital of Leisure, and City of Quality Life.

Hangzhou is at the west end of Hangzhou Bay, on the lower reaches of Qiantang River, and at the south end of the Beijing-Hangzhou Grand Canal. It is one of the three key cities, of which the other two are Shanghai and Nanjing, in Yangtze River Delta and a traffic hub in southeast China. The northwest and southwest of Hangzhou belong to the West and Central Zhejiang Hill Region; while the northeast and southeast to the North Zhejiang Plain Region with dense river networks. The hill regions of the city account for 65.6% of the total area.

Hangzhou is one of the cradles of Chinese civilization. Kuahuqiao Culture within Xiaoshan District has a history of 8,000 years and Liangzhu Culture, within Yuhang District, has a history of 5000 years. Since Hangzhou was set up as a county capital in Qin Dynasty, it has a history of more than 2200 years. It used to be the capital of Wuyue State (during the Five-Dynasty-Ten-State Era in Chinese history) and South Song Dynasty (1127-1279); that made Hangzhou one of the seven ancient capitals in China. Hangzhou was once called as Qiantang in the ancient time. In 589, the 9th year of Kaihuang Period of Sui Dynasty, Qiantang County was upgraded as Hangzhou City, which was the first time when the name “Hangzhou” came into history. In 1129, the 3rd year of Jianyan Period of South Song Dynasty, Emperor Gaozong visited Hangzhou and upgraded it as Lin’an prefecture. In 1138, the 8th year of Gaozong’s Shaoxing Period, South Song Dynasty established its capital in Lin’an and the city remained to be the national capital for over 140 years.

Over 80% of colleges, universities and research institutions in Zhejiang Province are gathered in Hangzhou. The city now has 36 universities with 409,600 undergraduate students and 29,700 graduate students. A number of national museums can be found in Hangzhou. Fine examples are the National Silk Museum and National Tea Museum. Along with the other museums in Hangzhou, they provide a fascinating insight into the history of Chinese traditional products.

Hangzhou dishes are noted for their elaborate preparation, sophisticated cooking and refreshing taste. Many local specialties will be sure to make your trip a cultural experience. We recommend that you try Beggar's Chicken, West Lake Vinegar Fish, Dongpo's Pork and Fried Shrimps with Longjing Tea, Pian Er Chuan Noodle, Shallot Stuffed Pancake, etc.

The shopping environment in Hangzhou is exciting and convenient. Travelers and tourists like to go to Qinghefang Street. It is one of the most famous and historic streets in the city and reflects many of the features of the Southern Song Dynasty. Shoppers will admire the antique buildings while purchasing items from a wide range of local goods such as silks, tea or maybe a silk parasol, brocade or a beautiful Hangzhou fan. These are just some of the items to be found but there are many more.

At night Hangzhou has much to offer and teahouses and various kinds of pubs are both plentiful and popular. Choosing one overlooking the West Lake for a pleasant chat over a cup of tea is sure to make you feel totally relaxed and refreshed.

Weather

Hangzhou is in subtropical zone with monsoon climate. With abundant sunshine and rainfall, it has clear distinction of four seasons. The average temperature is 16 °C around the year, 29 °C in the summer and 4 °C in the winter. The average rainfall is 1435 mm around the year and the average relative humidity 76%. There are two rainy seasons – one is the Plum rain season from June to July, and the other is the typhoon rain season from August to September.
